Better Lighting Built Closer to Home

At Cree Lighting, our teams are made up of dreamers and doers who are committed to making their communities – our communities – a better place to live and work. We're not only focused on making solutions that last, but on redefining what's possible, from the lighting we engineer to the value we add. After all, the difference between good and great lighting is often defined by who you're working with.

WYCLIFFE "WYC" GROUSBECK
Lead Owner and Governor

WYCLIFFE GROUSBECK has been Lead Owner and Governor of the Boston Celtics since he conceived of, and led, the purchase of the team in late 2002.

Wyc named the group "Banner 17 LLC" to signify his primary goal, the Celtics winning a 17th World Championship. That goal was achieved on June 17, 2008, as the Celtics defeated the Lakers by 39 points and became World Champions for the first time in 22 years.

In 2010 Wyc became Chairman of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, a teaching hospital of Harvard Medical School. It has been a world leader in vision and hearing research, fighting blindness and deafness, for almost 200 years.

In 2013 Wyc co-founded Causeway Media Partners, LP, a private equity firm managing over $340 million, focusing on sports and technology investments. Causeway's investments include Formula E Holdings, SeatGeek, SessionM, Peerfit and Flosports.

Wyc's earlier career involved experience as a venture capital investor in Boston and as a securities lawyer in Silicon Valley.

Wyc and his wife Emilia are involved in a number of charities including Mass. Eye and Ear, the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, Boys and Girls Clubs of Boston, Camp Jabberwocky, National Braille Press, USA Rowing, Robin Hood, Boston Children's Hospital and the Lovelane Special Needs Riding Program.

Wyc holds a bachelor's degree in history from Princeton University (1983), where he rowed on an undefeated crew that claimed the national rowing championship; a law degree from the University of Michigan (1986); and an MBA from Stanford Business School where he was a Miller Scholar (1992). He serves on the NBA Board of Governors, the boards of Partners Heath Care, NBC Sports Boston, Formula E Holdings, and Peerfit, and is the Chairman of the Rhodes Scholar Selection Committee for the New England Region.

H. IRVING GROUSBECK
Managing Partner

H. IRVING GROUSBECK is a Managing Partner of the Boston Celtics as well as an Executive Committee Member. Father of Managing Partner & Governor Wyc Grousbeck, Mr. Grousbeck is a Consulting Professor of Management at Stanford University's Graduate School of Business, and was formerly co-head of the school's Center for Entrepreneurial Studies. His teaching focuses on an objective means to develop a greater understanding of the issues faced by entrepreneurial companies and individuals. In addition to his professorial duties, Mr. Grousbeck co-authored the textbook New Business Ventures and the Entrepreneur. From 1981 to 1985, he was a lecturer at Harvard University's Graduate School of Business Administration.

In 1963, Mr. Grousbeck co-founded Continental Cablevision and went on to serve as that company's President from 1964 to 1980 and Chairman of the Board from 1980 to 1985. Continental Cablevision was sold to U.S. West Media Group in November 1996.

Mr. Grousbeck is a graduate of Amherst College and the Harvard Business School. He was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree by Amherst College in 2000, and by Menlo College in 2015. He serves on a number of private company boards and was formerly a Trustee of Children's Hospital Boston, Newton-Wellesley Hospital, New England Eye Bank, the Hewlett Foundation, and the Massachusetts Board of Higher Education.

TEAM PRESIDENT

RICH GOTHAM
Team President

RICH GOTHAM is in his 19th season with the 17-time world Champion Boston Celtics and his 13th season as team President. In this role, he is responsible for all aspects of the Celtics business operations including sales, marketing, customer service, corporate partnerships, business development, game entertainment, community engagement, communications and public relations, broadcast partnerships, arena relations, and real estate matters. In addition, he works closely with Celtics ownership, basketball operations staff, and the NBA on basketball related matters, as well as team and league initiatives. He succeeds Arnold "Red" Auerbach as Celtics team President, and serves on the NBA Board of Governors. Prior to being named Team President, Rich served as the team's Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer.

Since joining the Celtics in 2003, Rich has been recognized for leading the team to new heights off the court while growing team revenues by over 300%. Under his leadership the team has established new records for attendance, ticket sales, sponsorship, merchandise, and television ratings, contributing to the team's first NBA Championship in twenty-two years in 2008, as well as six division titles, five Eastern Conference Finals, and two NBA Finals appearances. In addition, he led negotiations for the construction and naming rights for the new state of the art Red Auerbach training center in partnership with New Balance, as well as a long term lease extension with the TD Garden. Rich also negotiated a long-term media rights and equity partnership with Comcast SportsNet (now NBC Sports Boston), one of the largest such deals in NBA league history, and negotiated the NBA's largest jersey patch sponsorship with GE.

Rich and the Celtics have been widely recognized as thought leaders in the business of sports and the team's business achievements under Rich's direction have been chronicled by The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times, The Harvard Business Review, Investors' Business Daily, Bloomberg, Reuters, CNBC, and Fox Business News. During the 2008-2009 season the Celtics were recognized as the top franchise in all of professional sports by The Sports Business Journal. With 19 million social media followers, the Celtics have pioneered sports digital marketing and fan engagement, aggregating the second largest digital following in all of North American Sports.

Under Rich's guidance, the Celtics have significantly increased their efforts to help children in need throughout New England and their programs have been recognized by The White House and US Department of Education. With over 200 events and 140 player appearances annually, the Celtics lead the NBA in community engagement with initiatives that impact over 20,000 children each year. In addition, Rich is very active in multiple charitable and fundraising initiatives on behalf of the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation, for which he is a board member.

Rich joined the Celtics after a fifteen year career in the tech industry, including five years with the global internet media company, Lycos, where he served as Vice President of Sales and Business Development and was responsible for generating revenues in excess of $300 million annually. While at Lycos, he was part of a senior-management team that exceeded Wall Street analyst expectations for revenue and profitability growth for nineteen (19) consecutive quarters and played an integral role in helping to grow the Lycos Network into the most visited website on the Internet in 2001. In addition, he sat on the Board of Directors for the Internet Advertising Bureau participating in the creation of multiple new internet advertising standards that are still in place today.

In addition to his duties with the Celtics, Rich currently serves as a board member for The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, The Make-A-Wish Foundation, and Everybody Fights. He also serves as a Trustee at Providence College, his alma mater.

BASKETBALL OPERATIONS STAFF

BRAD STEVENS
President of Basketball Operations

BRAD STEVENS begins his first season as the team's President of Basketball Operations and his ninth season overall with the Celtics. He was named as the team's eighth President of Basketball Operations on June 2, 2021.

In his eight seasons as Head Coach for the Boston Celtics he amassed a record of 354–282 (.557) in 636 regular season games that saw the Celtics make three appearances in the Eastern Conference Finals and seven straight trips to the playoffs from 2015–2021. He sits fourth in franchise history for most wins by a head coach behind just Red Auerbach, Tommy Heinsohn and Doc Rivers. His 78 playoff games coached, and 38 wins, are fifth most in franchise history behind Red Auerbach, K.C. Jones, Tommy Heinsohn and Doc Rivers. During his coaching career for the Celtics, he was named the NBA's Eastern Conference Coach of the Month three times (April 2015, February 2016, November 2017) and was also given the honor of coaching the Eastern Conference during the 2017 NBA All-Star Game in New Orleans.

Stevens joined the Celtics after coaching Butler University where he boasted a 166–49 record, four league regular season championships, three league tournament titles and six trips to post-season tournament play. He has the top two single season win totals in Butler and Horizon League history, and he became the only coach in school history to lead a team to the NCAA Division I national championship game, which he did twice. Stevens owns two Horizon League Coach of the Year awards and has rewritten the NCAA record book for Best Coaching Starts by Wins. During the 2012-13 season, he moved into the top spot on the six-year list with 165 victories. He captured the five-year record (139), moving ahead of Everett Case of North Carolina State (1947–51) in 2011-12, and he owns the three-year (89) and four-year (117) records. He is second on the two-year list with 56 wins.

Stevens left a position as a marketing associate at Eli Lilly and Company in Indianapolis to pursue a career in basketball coaching. He served in a volunteer capacity in Butler's basketball office during the summer of 2000, before eventually gaining a full-time administrative position under Thad Matta. Stevens joined the Bulldogs' staff in 2000-01 as coordinator of basketball operations, handling a variety of administrative duties. He was offered a full-time assistant coaching position by Todd Lickliter in 2001-02. Stevens worked with Lickliter for six seasons spanning from 2001-07. During Stevens' tenure as an assistant coach with the Bulldogs, Butler compiled a 131-61 record, won three Horizon League regular season championships and made four trips to post-season tournament play.

Stevens earned a B.A. degree in economics from DePauw in 1999. He was a four-year member of the basketball team at DePauw, earning the squad's "Coaches Award" in 1998-99. He and his wife, Tracy, have two children, son Brady and daughter Kinsley.

MICHAEL ZARREN
Vice President of Basketball Operations & Team Counsel

A lifelong Celtics fan and season ticket holder, MICHAEL ZARREN is now the Celtics' VP of Basketball Operations & Team Counsel. Now in his 18th year with the team after starting as an unpaid intern, Zarren is widely recognized as one of the leaders in the field of advanced statistical analysis of basketball players and teams, and is an important part of the team's strategic planning and player personnel evaluation processes. Zarren is also the team's salary cap expert and lead in-house counsel for basketball issues, and is responsible for the development of new technologies for team use, including the team's statistical, sports science, and video database processes. He previously also served as the team's in-house counsel for all business-side legal work, including sponsorship agreements, broadcast deals, and vendor arrangements, among other legal matters.

A graduate of Harvard Law School (where he served as editor-in-chief of the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology) and of the University of Chicago, Zarren has also served as a law clerk on the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit. Zarren was previously a management consultant for Fortune 500 firms across a wide variety of industries. A native of Swampscott, MA, Zarren is a member of the Bars of New York and Massachusetts, of the Board of Trustees of The Waring School, and of the Board of Voter Choice Massachusetts, a charity focused on educating people about improvements to our nation's voting systems, particularly including ranked choice voting.

AUSTIN AINGE
Assistant GM

AUSTIN AINGE enters his 11th season with the Celtics in the team's basketball operations department and first as the Assistant GM. Ainge rejoined the organization after spending two seasons as the Head Coach of the Maine Red Claws of the NBA Development League (2009-11). Ainge previously worked for the team during the 2008-09 season as a scout. Ainge has previously worked at Southern Utah University where he was responsible for perimeter players, recruiting, player development, video breakdown, and developing game plans. Before coaching he had a very successful playing career at Brigham Young University, where he was a two-year captain and won two Mountain West Conference Championships. While at BYU Austin went to three NCAA tournaments and one NIT. His senior year Austin was one of the top three point shooters in the nation and led the conference by shooting .525 from behind the arc in conference play.

Before playing at BYU, Austin put his basketball career on hold and served a two-year mission for his church, living in and serving the communities in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic where he learned to speak fluent Spanish. Austin is married to the former Crystal Bluth and has three sons, Andre, Finley, and Otto.

ALLISON FEASTER
VP, Player Development And Organizational Growth

ALLISON FEASTER begins her third season with the Celtics as the team's Vice President of Player Development and Organizational Growth.

Feaster comes to the Celtics after spending the past two seasons working for the NBA and the NBA G-League Basketball Operations department where she was serving as the G-League's Manager of Player Personnel and Coach Relations. She also completed the NBA's one-year Basketball Operations Associate Program in 2017.

Feaster had an illustrious playing career where she played in the WNBA from 1998-2008, becoming the first Ivy League player ever selected in the WNBA Draft when she was taken with the fifth overall pick in the 1998 WNBA Draft (Harvard University) by the Los Angeles Sparks. In her four years at Harvard she was selected as a first team All-Ivy League player each of her four seasons and was also honored as Ivy League Player of the Year three times and Ivy League Rookie of the Year during her freshman season.

During her playing career with the WNBA she was also making a name for herself in Europe where her professional career spanned four different countries (Portugal, France, Spain and Italy) with nine teams from 1998 until her retirement in 2016. In her time with Valenciennes Olympic in France her team won the French League title for four straight seasons (2001-02 through 2004-05) and also won the EuroLeague Women title in 2001-02 and 2003-04.

ART HORNE
Director of Performance

ART HORNE enters his fifth season as the Celtics' Director of Performance.

Horne joined the Celtics after spending the previous two seasons as the Atlanta Hawks Head Athletic Trainer. Horne came to the Hawks from Northeastern University, where he was Director of Sports Performance, with oversight of the development and care of all varsity student athletes, while also serving as Head Athletic Trainer and Strength and Conditioning Coach for the men's basketball team. Horne holds certifications from both the American College of Sports Medicine and the National Strength and Conditioning Association. He has also served as a reviewer for Athletic Therapy Today, the professional journal of certified athletic trainers and athletic therapists, while continuing to lecture nationally on topics related to the benefits of training barefoot, ankle and foot mechanics, strength training, and the importance of prevention and integrated care within the sports performance model. He received his Bachelor's Degree in Athletic Training and Physical Education with a teacher education certification from Canisius College (NY), and also holds a Master's Degree in Education from Boston University (MEd).

IME UDOKA
Head Coach

IME UDOKA begins his first season as the Head Coach of the Boston Celtics. He was hired to the position on June 28, 2021 and officially became the organization's 18th Head Coach.

Udoka joined the Celtics from the Brooklyn Nets where he was an assistant coach during the 2020-21 season. Prior to his time in Brooklyn he spent one season serving as an assistant coach with the Philadelphia 76ers (2019-20) and seven seasons in San Antonio (2012-19) where he was on the coaching staff under Gregg Popovich that won the 2014 NBA Championship. Udoka has been a part of coaching staffs that have made playoff appearances in each of the last nine seasons that he has been on the sideline.

Prior to beginning his coaching career, the Portland, OR native played professionally for 12 years (2000-12) in the NBA, NBA G-League as well as with teams in France and Spain. He appeared in 316 NBA games across parts of seven seasons with the L.A. Lakers (2004), New York (2006), Portland (2006-07), San Antonio (2007-09 and 2010-11) and Sacramento (2009-10), recording averages of 5.2 points, 2.9 rebounds and 1.0 assists in 18.1 minutes per game. Udoka was named the NBA G League's Jason Collier Sportsmanship Award winner in 2006, while also earning All-NBA G League First Team honors in the same season. He also represented Nigeria in international competition, earning bronze medals in 2005 and 2011 at the African Championships. Udoka began his collegiate career at College of Eastern Utah (1995-97) and spent a year (1997-98) at the University of San Francisco before finishing at Portland State (1999-00).

AARON MILES
Assistant Coach

AARON MILES begins his first season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics.

Miles comes to the Celtics after spending two seasons as a player development coach and four overall with the Golden State Warriors, after serving as head coach of the Santa Cruz Warriors, Golden State's G League affiliate, for two seasons (2017-18 and 2018-19).

Miles led Santa Cruz to the G League Western Conference Finals in 2018-19 following a 34-16 (.620) campaign, the second-best record in franchise history. Overall, he owns a career-record of 57-43 (.570) with Santa Cruz, helping five of his players earn GATORADE Call-ups. He first joined the Warriors organization as a training camp invitee following the 2005 NBA Draft, appearing in 19 games during the 2005-06 season. In 2019, Miles served as head coach of Golden State's Summer League team.

Miles played 10 years professionally, eight coming overseas. The 6'1" guard enjoyed a prestigious collegiate career at the University of Kansas, where he led the Jayhawks to a 110-28 record and back-to-back NCAA Tournament Final Four appearances in 2002 and 2003. He started all four seasons, owning career averages of 8.6 points, 3.3 rebounds and 6.9 assists. Miles owns the all-time University of Kansas and Big 12 records for career assists with 954 (ninth-most in NCAA history) and is second in KU steals history with 264. A two-time Academic All Big 12 selection, Miles began his coaching career as assistant director of student-athlete development at Kansas under Bill Self during the 2015-16 collegiate season. He later served as an assistant coach at Florida Gulf Coast in 2016-17.

A native of Portland, Oregon, and an alumnus of Portland's Jefferson High School, Miles and his wife Mikki have four sons: Aaron Jr. (12), Adonis (10), Asaiah (8) and Avion (7).

BEN SULLIVAN
Assistant Coach

BEN SULLIVAN begins his first season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics.

Sullivan joins the Celtics after spending three seasons with the Milwaukee Bucks coaching staff after coming over from Atlanta with Bucks Head Coach Mike Budenholzer prior to the start of the 2018-19 season. Sullivan spent seven seasons as an assistant coach with Budenholzer, appearing in the playoffs in six of those seasons with two trips to the Eastern Conference Finals.

Prior to his current time in Milwaukee and his four seasons as an assistant coach with Atlanta, Sullivan was an assistant video coordinator with the San Antonio Spurs while also working in their basketball development department. Before joining the Spurs, Sullivan was an assistant coach at Lewis & Clark College in Portland and a video coordinator at his alma mater, the University of Portland.

A native of Portland, Oregon, Sullivan graduated and played at the University of Portland before playing professionally in Europe. Sullivan and his wife, Bailee, have two kids: Penny (4 years old) and Walker (2 years old).

DAMON STOUDAMIRE
Assistant Coach

DAMON STOUDAMIRE begins his first season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics.

Stoudamire joins the Celtics from the University of the Pacific where he was the men's basketball head coach for five seasons. He posted a record of 71-77 in his five seasons and was named the All-West Coast Conference Coach of the Year for the 2019-20 season when the team was 23-10. Stoudamire was also honored as the Ben Jobe National Coach of the Year in 2019-20, given annually to the top minority coach at the Division I level. Before his time at the University of the Pacific he spent time as an assistant at the University of Memphis, where he was considered one of the top collegiate recruiters in the country. Prior to his last stint at Memphis, Stoudamire spent two seasons with his alma mater on the staff at Arizona from 2013 to 2015. In his two seasons in Tucson, he helped lead the Wildcats to back-to-back 30-win seasons, two Pac-12 regular-season titles, one Pac-12 Conference Tournament crown and back-to-back NCAA Elite Eight appearances while helping give rise to 2013-14 Pac-12 Rookie of the Year and the fourth overall pick in the 2014 NBA Draft- Aaron Gordon of the Orlando Magic. Prior to his time with Arizona, Stoudamire spent two seasons at Memphis (2011-13) where he helped the Tigers compile a 57-14 record and make back-to-back NCAA Tournament appearances, advancing to the third round in 2013. Stoudamire has also served as an assistant coach for the NBA's Memphis Grizzlies from 2009-11. Prior to his NBA stint, Stoudamire was the director of player development at Rice for the 2008-09 season.

Stoudamire was the seventh overall selection in the 1995 NBA Draft by the Toronto Raptors. He played 13 seasons in the league (1995-2008) for Toronto, Portland, Memphis and San Antonio, averaging 13.4 points, 6.1 assists and 3.4 rebounds in 878 career appearances. In his initial NBA season in 1995-96, Stoudamire averaged 19.0 points, a career-best 9.3 assists and 4.0 rebounds on his way to Rookie of the Year honors. He also claimed the NBA Rookie All-Star Game MVP trophy that season. During his second NBA season, he averaged a career-high 20.2 points and also posted averages of 8.8 assists and 4.1 rebounds in 81 games.

A native of Portland, Oregon, Stoudamire has two sons, Damon Jr. and Brandon.

To All The Frontline Heroes

THANK YOU

As an agricultural cooperative owned by more than 700 family farmers, we value the well-being of families above all. So, thank you to all heroes out there who brave the pandemic on a daily basis to protect the health of our communities.

To our dedicated Ocean Spray colleagues and retail workers on the frontlines keeping food in the supply chain, it's thanks to you that families across the world can stay nourished during these challenging times.

In support of our nearly 1,500 operational hourly employees on the frontlines, we've implemented increased pay and an extra week of vacation.

To help ensure no family goes hungry during this unprecedented challenge we've partnered with Feeding America Food Banks to provide over 100,000 meals to families in need throughout the country.

From our family to yours, we're all in this together and will get through it as family.
Stay well and again, thank you!

JOE MAZZULLA begins his third season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics. He was appointed to the position on July 3, 2019.

Mazzulla joined the Celtics after being the Head Coach for the Fairmont State men's basketball program for two seasons. He was the 12th head coach in the history of the program. He recorded a record of 43-17 in his two seasons at the helm of the Fighting Falcons.

A former West Virginia University standout, Mazzulla spent five years coaching at the NCAA Division II level, including three at Fairmont State.

Mazzulla has also served as an assistant coach for the Maine Red Claws of the NBA Gatorade League. Prior to his position with the Red Claws, Mazzulla was an assistant coach for three seasons on Jerrod Calhoun's staff at Fairmont State. During that time, the Falcons compiled a record of 67-26 with three 20-win seasons and a pair of NCAA Tournament appearances. Mazzulla started his coaching career by spending two seasons as an assistant coach at Glenville State. In his time with the Pioneers, Mazzulla helped develop two All-WVIAC honorees and a pair of all-freshman team honorees.

Prior to beginning his coaching career, Mazzulla played four seasons at West Virginia University for head coaches John Beilein and Bob Huggins. His teams made four-straight NCAA Tournament appearances, including a berth in the Final Four in 2010. Mazzulla also won a Big East Tournament Championship and NIT Tournament Championship at WVU and the standout also excelled in the classroom, getting named to Big East Academic All-Star Team three times (2007, 2009 and 2010).

Mazzulla and his wife Camai have two children, Michael Harden and Emmanuel Joseph Daniel Mazzulla. Mazzulla is a native of Johnston, R.I.

TONY DOBBINS
Assistant Coach

TONY DOBBINS begins his second season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics and his fourth season overall after spending the two previous seasons as a video coordinator.

Dobbins joined the Celtics after playing professionally in Europe as well as the NBA Development League for 13 years. He is a three-time winner of the French Pro A Best Defensive Player award (2009, 2013, 2014), a two-time winner of the French Cup (2010, 2015) and was a D-League Champion with the Asheville Altitude in 2005.

A native of Washington, D.C., Dobbins attended Virginia Tech and Richmond and he and his wife Allyson have two daughters.

WILL HARDY
Assistant Coach

WILL HARDY begins his first season as an Assistant Coach with the Boston Celtics.

Hardy joins the Celtics after spending 11 seasons with the Spurs and four as an assistant coach. He served as the team's video coordinator from 2013-15 and served as the head coach of the Spurs summer league team in Utah from 2015-18 and was the head coach of the Spurs Las Vegas summer league team in 2017 and 2018. The Williams College graduate began his career in San Antonio as a basketball operations intern in 2010 before being promoted to assistant video coordinator in 2011. He also served on the coaching staff for Team USA at the 2019 FIBA World Cup. While at Williams College, he was a member of the Ephs basketball squad that finished 30-2 and second nationally in 2010. He is originally from Richmond, Va., he and his wife Spencer recently welcomed their first child, daughter Elliott, in May 2019.

As we social distance, COVID-19 pushes us apart.

As we help children around the world, we pull together.

The pandemic shows how connected we all are, how the quality of life anywhere affects everyone's health and well-being, everywhere.

Children in the world's poorest places face the gravest risks – not just from COVID-19, but also from its ripple effects, especially hunger. Because when parents can't work, children can't eat. We've never seen a crisis like this.

But ChildFund is helping millions of children across Africa, Asia and the Americas stay connected to what they need to grow up healthy, educated and safe. In the biggest emergency response of ChildFund's 80-year history, we and caring people everywhere are pulling together to make sure that children not only survive the pandemic but thrive beyond it.

ChildFund®

As we social distance, COVID-19 pushes us apart.

As we help children around the world, we pull together.

The pandemic shows how connected we all are, how the quality of life anywhere affects everyone's health and well-being, everywhere.

Children in the world's poorest places face the gravest risks – not just from COVID-19, but also from its ripple effects, especially hunger. Because when parents can't work, children can't eat. We've never seen a crisis like this.

But ChildFund is helping millions of children across Africa, Asia and the Americas stay connected to what they need to grow up healthy, educated and safe. In the biggest emergency response of ChildFund's 80-year history, we and caring people everywhere are pulling together to make sure that children not only survive the pandemic but thrive beyond it.

HelpCureHD aims to help improve the quality of life for those affected by Huntington's Disease by contributing financial, emotional, and mental support while trying to find the cure.

THE PROBLEM

There is no cure for Huntington's Disease. Currently, there is a 50/50 chance a child could inherit the disease if a parent has HD in their family line.

There is a way to stop the gene from being passed on, through in vitro fertilization, or IVF. A procedure that implants embryos that do not have the HD gene can cost upwards of $25,000 - $30,000. This treatment is the only way parents who are at risk can guarantee their biological child will be HD-free.

OUR GOALS

- Provide the finances for families who are at-risk and in financial need and are willing to undergo IVF in order to stop the HD gene from being passed on in their family line.
- Our broader focus is to continue developing partnerships with fertility clinics across the country and raising funds to help cover these costs for many more families.
- HelpCureHD aims to welcome more than 70 HD-free babies through our PGT-IVF grant program in 2021-2022.

2021-22 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

BY TAYLOR SNOW

BALL HANDLERS

Here is the trio that will be largely responsible for controlling the pace for the Celtics this season.

MARCUS SMART

Marcus Smart has improved tremendously as a playmaker over the last couple of years and is coming off career-best averages of 13.1 points and 5.7 assists per game in 2020-21. This season, he'll have a chance to shine even more. Following the offseason departure of Kemba Walker, Smart will now be Boston's primary ball handler, a role in which he should thrive.

Over the years, Smart has often either backed up Boston's lead floor general or filled in when needed, such as last season when he stepped in for Walker while the former All-Star was working his way back from offseason knee surgery. Smart played roughly 45 percent of his minutes at the point guard position last season which, according to Basketball-Reference, was the highest mark since his rookie season (74 percent) when he was backing up Rajon Rondo.

Being Boston's longest-tenured player should benefit Smart in this role, as he knows the system and his teammates' tendencies as well as anyone. For instance, he's built solid chemistry with Brown and Tatum over the last several years and understands how to facilitate open looks for the star tandem, and he had a special connection with Al Horford during Horford's first stint with the team. Smart has always been relied upon to be a defensive stalwart for the Celtics, but this year, the team needs him to continue to step up on the offensive end as they put the ball in his hands.

DENNIS SCHRÖDER

The Celtics would have been fairly light on ball handlers heading into this season if it hadn't been for the surprise addition of Dennis Schröder in mid-August. And what an addition he should be. Schröder brings to the table eight years of NBA experience and career averages of 14.3 points and 4.7 assists per game. Last season, he started 61 games for the Los Angeles Lakers and finished second on the team in assists (5.8 per game) behind LeBron James.

In recent years, Schröder has been a facilitator for several Hall-of-Fame-bound, high-volume scorers including Anthony Davis, Russell Westbrook, and James. Such experience should be helpful as the 28-year-old transitions into playing alongside a couple of rising superstars in Brown and Tatum.

Much of Schröder's playmaking is initiated by driving to the basket. Last season, the shifty guard averaged 13.3 drives per game, which would have placed him first on the Celtics in that category ahead of both Tatum (12.4) and Brown (10.5). He chose to pass on 42.9 percent of those drives, a trend which should bode well for Boston's shooters as Schröder will look to kick out to them on the perimeter if he can't find an open look inside.

PAYTON PRITCHARD

Rounding out Boston's trio of ball handlers is sophomore point guard Payton Pritchard. The 6-foot-1 University of Oregon product burst onto the scene as a rookie last season, averaging 7.7 points, 2.4 rebounds, and 1.8 assists per game, all while shooting 41.1 percent from 3-point range. By the end of the season, it was clear that the Celtics got a steal in the previous year's draft, considering how 25 players had been picked before Pritchard and he outperformed most of them.

Pritchard is primed to break out even more in his second season, especially after the Summer League showing he just put forth in Las Vegas, where he averaged 16.8 points, 5.8 rebounds, 8.5 assists, and 1.8 steals while shooting 47.8 percent from the field, 46.9 percent from long range, and 88.9 percent from the free-throw line.

Now that there's less traffic on the ball-handler depth chart, Pritchard should have plenty of opportunities to zoom into a more substantial role.

THE WINGS

Wings are commonly the most versatile players on the floor and are relied upon to take on a heavy scoring load. Defensively, they'll often be tasked with suppressing elite scorers on opposing teams. Depending on their skill set, they may also be tasked with taking on ball-handling duties, or they may slide into the frontcourt to take on a big man role.

JAYSON TATUM

Jayson Tatum managed to take another jump in his fourth NBA season, becoming one of the most dominant scorers in the NBA. He averaged career-highs of 26.4 points, 7.4 rebounds and 4.3 assists per game last season, while leading the league in 50-point games with four spanning across the regular season and postseason.

With that being said, the two-time All-Star may be entering his fifth campaign with a chip on his shoulder, considering how he was snubbed from making the All-NBA team last season after earning a Third-Team selection the previous year. Tatum's active offseason should help him take his game to an even higher level. In August, he won an Olympic gold medal with Team USA, for whom he was the second-leading scorer behind Kevin Durant. He also bulked up his frame, adding muscle that should help him become an even more lethal inside scorer and a more physical defender.

Tatum's game was already at an ultra-elite level prior to this summer, but adding his medal-winning experience in Tokyo along with his improved physique to the equation could mean that we're in store for yet another leap from the 23-year-old superstar.

JAYLEN BROWN

The same could also be said about Tatum's ever-improving wingmate, Jaylen Brown. Last season, Brown earned his first All-Star selection while logging career-high averages of 24.7 points, 3.4 rebounds, 1.2 steals, and 0.6 blocks to go along with career-high shooting clips of 48.4 percent from the field, 39.7 percent from 3-point range, and 76.4 percent from the free-throw line. It was by far the most aggressive version of JB that we've seen to date, and it showed, as his drives to the basket per game (10.5) increased by nearly 25 percent from the previous season and by more than 100 percent from the season before that.

Unfortunately, Brown's stellar campaign ended on a sour note as he tore a ligament in his left wrist just prior to the playoffs, resulting in him needing to undergo season-ending surgery. The good news is that the 24-year-old has been out of his cast for three months now, so his return to the court could be just around the corner.

JOSH RICHARDSON

Together, Brown and Tatum shouldered a heavy burden on both sides of the ball last season; however, the arrival of Josh Richardson should help to alleviate their workload moving forward.

Entering his seventh NBA season, Richardson is a proven veteran who can score, facilitate, and defend the perimeter at a high level. He boasts career averages of 12.3 points, 3.2 rebounds, 2.8 assists, and 1.1 steals per game and has been a starter for the last four-and-a-half seasons while playing for a trio of playoff teams in Miami, Philadelphia, and Dallas. Last season, Richardson started in the Mavericks backcourt alongside All-NBA point guard Luka Doncic. While Doncic dominated the scoring column, Richardson complemented him nicely, putting up 12.1 points, 3.3 rebounds, and 2.6 assists per game. He was also one of the league's premier free-throw shooters, as his 91.7 percent clip ranked fifth among all players who attempted at least 100 such shots.

Richardson has built a solid reputation on the defensive end, as he has earned All-Defensive votes in two of the past four seasons. Pairing him alongside Brown, Tatum, and two-time First-Team All-Defensive guard Marcus Smart should make Boston one of the most feared perimeter defenses in the league after enduring somewhat of a down year on that end last season.

AARON NESMITH

If there was a Most Improved Player from the first day of the 2020-21 season to the last, Aaron Nesmith would have easily earned that recognition for the Celtics. The 21-year-old forward experienced typical rookie growing pains during the first few months of the season and registered 26 DNPs through Boston's first 57 games. However, near the end of April, Nesmith began to carve out a consistent bench role as a high-energy defender and knockdown 3-point shooter.

In his first 32 appearances through 58 games, Nesmith averaged 3.2 points and 2.1 rebounds per game, while shooting 36.5 percent from the field, 31.9 percent from 3-point range, and 68.8 percent from the free-throw line. In his last 14 games of the regular season, he put up 8.2 PPG and 4.3 RPG, while shooting a remarkable 52.4 percent from the field, 46.2 percent from deep, and 91.7 percent from the foul line.

Such improvement allowed Nesmith to earn significant playoff minutes, as he proved his worth as the 14th overall pick from the 2020 Draft. All of his hard work should also open the door for a significant role this coming season, meaning his DNP days are likely long gone.

ROMEO LANGFORD

A string of unfortunate injuries led to a frustrating first two years of Romeo Langford's career. But, as he reached full health down the final stretch of last season, he finally got to show how much potential he could bring to the table in Boston.

Langford's defensive tenacity earned him a substantial role throughout the last two months of the 2020-21 campaign; he even earned a few spot-starts late in the season, including in the last two matchups of the playoffs. He also showed promise on the offensive end, re-displaying his ability to drive the ball, while also showing off an improved 3-point shot.

The best game of Langford's career also happened to be his last one before the summer — a 17-point, two-assist, two-steal, two-block effort against the Brooklyn Nets in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference Quarterfinals. Putting icing on the cake, Langford was finally able to have his first completely healthy offseason this summer, which means he had four full months to prepare and improve heading into his third season.

JABARI PARKER

Each of the aforementioned wings brings a high level of defensive intensity to the game. In Jabari Parker's case, he's capable of providing instant offense. Signed as a late-season addition last spring, Parker produced a handful of impressive outings, including an 18-point, seven-rebound effort in the regular-season finale against the New York Knicks and a pair of double-digit playoff performances against Brooklyn.

The 6-foot-8 veteran forward averaged 16.7 points and 9.4 rebounds per 36 minutes in 10 regular-season appearances, and 20.7 points and 9.2 rebounds per 36 in four playoff games, making him one of the Celtics' most efficient scorers and rebounders during his limited action.

The question heading into his first full season with the C's is whether Parker can remain healthy. The 26-year-old has been cursed with injuries throughout his career, which derailed a once-promising start with the Milwaukee Bucks. If he can amend that trend and stay on the court this season, the former No. 2 overall draft pick could be a solid offensive option off the bench.

SAM HAUSER

Undrafted rookie Sam Hauser is the only player, so far, who has earned a two-way contract with the Boston Celtics and Maine Celtics for this upcoming season. Hauser joins the organization after four standout collegiate seasons at Marquette (2016-19) and Virginia (2020-21). He's fresh off an All-ACC season with the Cavaliers during which he averaged 16.0 points and 6.8 rebounds per game, while shooting 41.7 percent from deep on 151 such attempts.

Sharpshooting is Hauser's specialty, as he showed at the 2021 Summer League. The 6-foot-8 forward shot 46.2 percent from long range during five appearances for the Summer C's, which included a 21-point, 6-for-10 3-point effort against the Orlando Magic.

Per his contract, Hauser will be splitting time between Boston and Portland, Maine this season, as he tries to make his case for becoming a full-time NBA player.

THE BIGS

As their title indicates, these are often the largest players on the floor and are usually responsible for handling the post and protecting the rim. Here are the players who will be sharing that job for the Celtics this season:

ROBERT WILLIAMS III

Robert Williams III saw his role increase significantly from the first half to the second half of last season, as he transitioned from being a backup big into becoming the Celtics' starting center. Even with Al Horford and Enes Kanter back in the mix, there is still a great chance for Williams III to remain in such a role — especially considering how well he meshes with Jaylen Brown, Marcus Smart, and Jayson Tatum, who says Williams III is his "favorite person to play with."

The 6-foot-8 big man has seen perennial improvement since entering the league, increasing his scoring, rebounding, and assists in each of his first three years. Last season, he produced career bests of 8.0 points, 6.9 rebounds, 1.8 assists, 1.8 blocks, and 0.8 steals, while playing 18.9 minutes per game. So on a per-36 minute basis, he put up 15.2 points, a team-high 13.1 rebounds, 3.4 assists, 3.4 blocks, and 1.6 steals.

However, his games and minutes were limited due to a long list of health issues, including hip, knee, toe, and ankle injuries. He also missed extended time in the league's Health and Safety Protocol. If he can avoid such misfortune this season, Williams III would find himself earning much more playing time, which could then help turn him into one of the best stat-sheet stuffers in the league.

AL HORFORD

The first move that Brad Stevens made during his presidency was bringing Al Horford back to the Celtics. And the new head of basketball operations had great reason to. Since Horford's departure two summers ago, the Celtics have lacked in the stretch-big department. So having him return fills a significant void.

Horford's versatility makes him an invaluable weapon on both ends of the floor. He's able to score in the post, from the mid-range, and out beyond the arc. He can handle the ball and he's a great passer, meaning teams can run their offense through him. And he's a solid rim protector who can defend multiple positions, as proven when he earned All-Defensive honors with the Celtics four seasons ago.

The big question with Horford is whether his age will limit his action. At 35 years old, he is the only Celtic in the plus-30 committee, and typically a player with a 6-foot-9, 240-pound frame would begin to feel all those years creeping up by now. However, Horford has yet to see a decline in his production; last season with Oklahoma City, he averaged 14.2 points, 6.7 rebounds, and 3.4 assists per game, while also shooting 36.8 percent from beyond the arc on a career-high 5.4 attempts per game. So as long as he keeps sipping from the fountain of youth, Horford should continue to have significant minutes on his plate.

ENES KANTER

Stevens brought back another locker room favorite in Enes Kanter, who has now ping-ponged back and forth between Portland and Boston over the past four seasons.

The 11-year veteran is coming off a stellar season with the Trail Blazers after averaging 11.2 points and a career-high-tying 11.0 rebounds while playing 24.2 minutes per game. He placed second in the NBA in both offensive rebounding percentage (16.8 percent) and total rebound percentage (24.2 percent), trailing only Hawks center Clint Capela in both categories. He was also one of only 11 players who appeared in all 72 games despite the uncertain nature of last season.

Kanter may not be seeing quite as many minutes now that he's back with the Celtics (he played 16.9 minutes per game in Boston two seasons ago with averages of 8.1 PPG and 7.4 RPG), but his rebounding efficiency should remain the same whenever he's on the court. He's a great option if the Celtics are in need of playing some traditional big minutes, as he's a low-post monster and one of the most elite glass-cleaners in the league.

GRANT WILLIAMS

Grant Williams has established a solid frontcourt role through his first two seasons with the Celtics. He hasn't necessarily been a stat-sheet stuffer, but he's been a jack-of-all-trades type of player who provides defensive versatility, above-average shooting, non-stop hustle, and vocal leadership.

At 6-foot-6, Williams doesn't fit the typical mold of a big; however, his 240-pound frame gives him plenty of strength (he was the leading bench-presser at the 2019 NBA combine) to bang bodies with opposing 4s and 5s. And Boston's certainly going to need some extra muscle in the frontcourt this season after the departures of strongmen Semi Ojeleye and Tristan Thompson.

Another factor that will keep Williams earning minutes is his 3-point shooting, which has improved drastically since his rookie season when he missed his first 25 attempts from beyond the arc. He went from shooting 25.0 percent on 1.4 attempts per game in his first season to shooting 37.2 percent on 2.0 attempts per game in Year 2, including an exceptional 44.6 percent clip on corner triples.

JUANCHO HERNANGOMEZ

Juancho Hernangomez is an interesting case in our roster breakdown because he's somewhat on the fence between a wing and a big. With Minnesota last season, he played 23 percent of his minutes at the 3 and 77 percent at the 4 (via Basketball-Reference), which would categorize him as a wing. Though, he also played significant minutes at the 5 when he was in Denver in previous years. So, as we considered Boston's immense depth at the wing and the likelihood that Hernangomez will serve almost entirely as a stretch-4, we decided to slot him with the bigs.

The stretch-4 was a role that Boston needed to fill this summer, and Hernangomez gives them a solid option to call upon off the bench. The 25-year-old Spaniard has seen his scoring climb in each of the past four seasons, including a mark of 7.2 PPG last season while playing an average of 17.3 minutes per appearance.

A good chunk of Hernangomez's scoring comes from beyond the 3-point arc, where he owns a career shooting percentage of 35.1 percent. He only shot 32.7 percent from deep last season, but playing in an offense that includes a pair of elite playmakers in Jaylen Brown and Jayson Tatum should be mutually beneficial, as defenses will need to keep tabs on Hernangomez when he's stationed out beyond the arc.

BRUNO FERNANDO

It didn't take long for Bruno Fernando to win over Celtics fans this past summer, after revealing that Kevin Garnett is his favorite player of all time. The newly-acquired center will also likely earn their respect on the court once they see the KG-esque intensity that he brings to the game. If you happened to watch any Summer League action, then you already know what we're talking about; he was the loudest, most enthusiastic player on the floor in Vegas.

Fernando joins the C's after spending his first two seasons with the Atlanta Hawks, for whom he made 89 appearances, including 13 starts. At 6-foot-9, 240 pounds he brings a powerful presence to the frontcourt, which helped him to pull down 12.4 rebounds per 36 minutes last season.

The 23-year-old still has some areas to improve upon before he can carve out a consistent role in Boston's rotation; however, being around a couple of established vets in Horford and Kanter should help with his development.

CELTICS UNITED

On September 8th, 2020, the Boston Celtics and the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation announced a multi-focus commitment to addressing racial injustice and social inequities in the Greater Boston area, with an emphasis on combating issues that have impacted the Black community as a result of the nation's long-term history of systemic racism.

The Celtics investor group, in conjunction with the Celtics organization, is committing $25 million over the next ten years, inclusive of $20 million in cash with an additional $5 million in media assets and in-kind value to support both the NBA's efforts, as well as local programs focused on six pillars that we have identified in discussions with community leaders and our players. This collaborative effort will be known as Boston Celtics United for Social Justice.

The six pillars are:

- Equity in Education
- Economic Opportunity and Empowerment
- Equity in Healthcare
- Criminal Justice and Law Enforcement
- Breaking Down Barriers and Building Bridges Between Communities
- Voting and Civic Engagement

These focus areas were identified through extensive discussions with members of the Celtics organization, including players, owners, coaches, and front office staff, as well as a wide variety of leaders in community organizations, government, academia, and social justice. The implementation of these initiatives will span across all basketball and business functions of the organization, and will be led by a governing board of Celtics investors, Celtics legends, and Celtics staff members that will set and manage strategic objectives.

"We feel both the urgency of the moment and the weight of the centuries of injustices as we undertake this critically important work," said Steve Pagliuca, Celtics Managing Partner & Alternate Governor and Chairman of the Boston Celtics Shamrock Foundation. "The Boston Celtics have a proud legacy of being on the right side of racial and social justice, and we are more resolved than ever to take that commitment to another level. Our goal is to do everything we can to achieve progress on each of the targeted pillars, and we will work tirelessly to make real change."

"Our goal is to have a direct impact now," said Celtics forward Jaylen Brown. "We don't need to pacify the situation with empty gestures. We need to hold ourselves, the Celtics organization, and the city of Boston accountable. Monetary commitment is a great first step, but we need to commit to this process by creating a balance of short and long-term change. The time is now."

TD GARDEN

TD Garden, owned and operated by Delaware North, first opened its doors to the public on September 30, 1995. Located in the heart of the City of Boston and convenient by public transportation, TD Garden is an attractive destination for locals and Boston visitors alike.

In the 20 plus years since its opening, New England's premiere sports and entertainment arena hosts approximately 3.5 million people and 200 events annually. It is the proud home of the NHL's Boston Bruins, an original six franchise, and the NBA's storied Boston Celtics. Thanks to these high-profile tenants, TD Garden's rafters house more championship banners than any other professional sports arena in the country.

In addition to world-renowned concerts, sporting events, family shows, wrestling, and ice shows, the arena has played host to countless marquee events, including the Democratic National Convention, NHL All-Star Game, NCAA Frozen Fours, NCAA Women's Final Four, U.S. Gymnastics Olympic Trials, U.S. Figure Skating Championships and ISU World Figure Skating Championships, among others. TD Garden is proud to continue to attract these types of high caliber events to Boston and, in turn, generate more than $365 million in direct economic impact to the Greater Boston region over the last 20 years.

TD Garden's parent company, Delaware North, continues to be committed to reinvesting in TD Garden and making the arena the high watermark for best in class arenas in both experience and service. In 2018, Charlie Jacobs, CEO of Delaware North's Boston Holdings, along with TD Garden president Amy Latimer, announced a massive expansion of the 23-year-old arena taking place over the next two years. The $100 million private investment will provide a combined 50,000 square feet of additional space on all levels of the building and marks the 'Legendary Transformation' of TD Garden and the fan experience for generations to come.

Along with the addition of new space, comes the opportunity to introduce a new brand and a redefinition of The Premium Club, now known as 'Boston Garden Society' – Boston's newest oldest sports and social club. Boston Garden Society is a commitment to a new tradition of sports and entertainment for the Boston business community and beyond, coming in the form of transformed spaces as well as upgraded amenities and experiences over the next few years.

Extending the guest experience beyond the four walls of TD Garden is paramount to it its leadership, which is why Delaware North and Boston Properties broke ground on a joint venture project called The Hub on Causeway in 2016. The Hub on Causeway a 1.5 million square foot mixed-use project that is being constructed on the 2.5-acre site of the original Boston Garden. This transit-oriented development, featuring retail, office space, hotel, and residential building, is a significant investment that will bring substantial improvements to North Station, create major economic impact for the area and strengthen the viability of this important district in the City of Boston.

TD Garden's all-new, state of the art digital marquee on the exterior of the arena solidifies its place as the 'gateway' to the City. The digital marquee is a 3,000 square foot LED screen that is integrated with the arena's pre-existing exterior lighting elements and providing the public with real time game updates, upcoming event notifications, and amplifies community initiatives that are supported by Garden Neighborhood Charities, TD Garden's philanthropic arm.

Delaware North, owner and operator of TD Garden, is one of the largest privately-held hospitality and food service companies in the world. Founded in 1915 and owned by the Jacobs family for more than 100 years, Delaware North has global operations at high-profile places such as sports and entertainment venues, national and state parks, destination resorts and restaurants, airports, and regional casinos.
